HISTORY OF BOWLING GREEN, KENTUCKY

Bowling Green, home of Western Kentucky State College, is located in the south central part of Kentucky. Because of its unique location, 114 miles south of Louisville and 63 miles north of Nashville, Bowling Green has become a center of culture and trade. Today, it exemplifies the awakening which has taken place in the South since the turn of the century. Although Bowling Green is still the center of one of the states largest milk producing and livestock market areas, it is rapidly assuming importance in industry. Located here are such firms as Union Underwear, Pet Milk Corporation, Detrex Chemical Company, Wren Manufacturing Company, Cutler-Hammer Corporation, Field Packing Company, and the Bowling Green Manufacturing Company.

In 1792, when Kentucky was admitted to the Union, a small, typical, pioneer settlement of 12 to 14 miles of fertile land was established near what later became Bowling Green. This settlement, called McFaddens Station, was a popular stopping place for travelers going over the Cumberland trail to Nashville. About 1794, two brothers, George and Robert Moore, came from Virginia and built the first log cabin on the site of what is now the city of Bowling Green. The Moore brothers' cabin became a favorite meeting place for local settlers. Surrounding the cabin was a large grove of beautiful trees. In the late afternoon the men of the village would gather there and roll wooden balls on the green, thus the name Bowling-green (old style), Bowling Green (new style), was incorporated March 6, 1798.

Bowling Green is the county seat of Warren County, the 24th county formed in the state. It was established from a part of Logan County in 1796, and derives its name from General Joseph Warren, hero of Bunker Hill.

With the outbreak of the Civil War, a newly constituted state of Kentucky was created in sovereign convention, November 18-20, 1861, in Russellville, Kentucky. It established Bowling Green, as the Confederate capital of the state. This honor, however, was short lived for the union troops recaptured Bowling Green and southern Kentucky, returning it to the Union.

Gentlemen:

It is a distinct pleasure for the administration of this college to write in support of the affiliation petition of our local professional business fraternity, Beta Gamma Kappa.

Western Kentucky State College has had a business administration program only since 1961, but the program of the College of Commerce, merged with Western in June, 1963, dates back to 1874.

Students in the business area follow programs leading to degrees in accounting and in business administration with emphasis in management, marketing, and finance. Approximately 1,500 students are currently enrolled in the various programs. A smaller number of students are in the business education program which has about 85 majors at present.

A vast majority of the students taking the above programs are men, and there is a need for an organization of interested males who maintain a high standard of educational achievement and who demonstrate a genuine professional approach to their future careers.

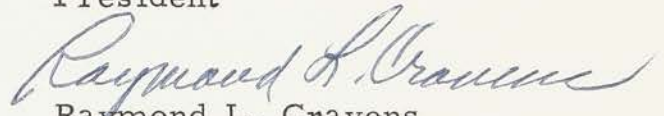

Beta Gamma Kappa has already attracted a considerable number of young men who meet the criteria. It would be most fitting for this organization to be affiliated with a strong national organization such as Delta Sigma Pi.

The administrative officers of the College pledge themselves to the support of such an arrangement and to the ongoing program of the local chapter.

Sincerely yours,

Kelly Thompson

WESTERN KENTUCKY STATE COLLEGE

DR. HENRY HARDIN CHERRY

First president of Western Kentucky State College. This statue is located in front of Cherry Hall, serving as an inspiration to all Western students.

HISTORY OF WESTERN

Western was established by act of the 1906 Legislature of Kentucky. Prior to this time, there had existed in Bowling Green, Ogden College, the Southern Normal School, and the Bowling Green Business University, whose president was Dr. Henry Hardin Cherry. Dr. Cherry became the first president of Western Kentucky State Normal School, when on January 1, 1907, Southern Normal School was transferred to the state. The state institution occupied the building and grounds of the Southern Normal School, known as the Ogden Campus, until 1911, when the state normal school was transferred to College Heights, its present site.

In 1922, the Kentucky Legislature changed the name of the institution to Western Kentucky State Normal School and Teachers College and granted to the college the right to confer baccalaureate degrees upon its graduates. In September of the same year, the executive council approved a course of study four years above the high school and authorized the conferring of the baccalaureate degree on its completion. In 1930, the name was changed to Western Kentucky State Teachers College, and in 1948 to Western Kentucky State College.

Western entered into a co-operative education program with the Bowling Green College of Commerce. The purpose of such a program was to offer to students of both institutions the more highly developed parts of the program of both schools. On June 1, 1963, Western expanded its educational offerings by absorbing the Bowling Green College of Commerce.

Western Kentucky State College is ranked second in total enrollment among the state supported colleges of Kentucky. The growth is phenomenal to see and easily witnessed by stepping onto the campus. New buildings are being erected every semester and while these are being built more are in the planning stage. At this moment, the construction of two new dormitories, a new football stadium, and a new classroom building which will also house the Department of Business and Government are being planned. It is expected that the department will be moved into the new home for the 1965 school year. Western more than doubled the teaching staff in the last four years and now has a ratio of 19.8 students to every Professor.

HISTORY OF COLLEGE OF COMMERCE

The College of Commerce was a pioneer institution for education in the South. In its early years it concentrated on vocational business education of immediate value in obtaining employment. The College of Commerce traces its origin through preceding institutions to the Bowling Green Business University organized in 1874. During the ensuing years the Business University turned to the purpose of a specialized institution of post high-school business education. In 1922, the College of Commerce was organized in conjunction with the Business University as a Junior College. Later, in 1926, the College of Commerce was expanded to a four-year senior college, and operated under a separate charter. The Bowling Green Business University terminated its educational activities at the close of the 1960 academic year. At that time the Bowling Green College of Commerce was incorporated as a non-profit, four-year college. On June 1, 1963, Western Kentucky State College and Bowling Green College of Commerce merged. The College of Commerce terminated an illustrious career of service to the South.

IDEALS OF WESTERN

The ideals on which Western Kentucky State College is founded were first declared by Dr. Henry Hardin Cherry, the founder and first president of the college. Three of the most essential of these ideas were formulated by Dr. Cherry as early as 1892. They are as follows:

1. To be a live school and to impart to its students a burning zeal to do and to be something.
2. To let the reputation of the school be sustained by real merit.
3. To lead the student to understand that a broad and liberal education is essential to the highest degree of success in any endeavor of life.

The seal of the college contains two additional and intergral ideals which the college fosters and emphasizes. One of these is "Life More Life", which expresses the idea that education should increase the individuals power and desire to live a noble life. Above all, the motto of the college "The Spirit Makes the Master", expresses the central ideal undergirding Western Kentucky State College. This motto challenges each Western student to realize his full potential as an individual.

November 16, the birth date of President H. H. Cherry, was designated as Founders Day in 1931. The annual celebration was innaugurated by the Board of Regents to render homage to the founder of Western and to maintain the lofty standards and ideals of the college. Ogden Day is observed annually during the month of April to pay tribute to Ogden College and its founders.

THE PYLON

Standing near the entrance to the Western campus the pylon was erected in 1956 to commemorate the fiftieth anniversary of the college.

Grand Council
Delta Sigma Pi

Gentlemen:

The student officers of our local business fraternity, Beta Gamma Kappa, have requested that I write concerning their application for affiliation with your fraternity. I am pleased to comply with this request.

Western's business program has grown explosively since its inception in September 1961 and now serves over 1,500 students. These students need a professional fraternity of national status to further professionalism and to assist in the inculcation of ethical standards during their undergraduate years. Your organization seems to offer needed stimuli to the achievement of the above goals.

For my part, I wish to give assurances that we shall always be ready to assist the local fraternity and the Grand Council in their endeavors.

Sincerely yours,

William M. Jenkins, Jr., Head
Department of Business and Government

HISTORY OF THE DEPARTMENT OF BUSINESS AND GOVERNMENT

The Department of Business and Government at Western Kentucky State College will be three years old at the end of the 1963-64 school year. During this period, the department has been under the able leadership of Dr. William M. Jenkins, Jr., who is largely responsible for the almost phenomenal growth of the department in such a short period of time.

In September, 1961, the department consisted of Dr. Jenkins and three full-time faculty members assisted by four part-time teachers from the business community. Class enrollment for the semester totaled 350 and majors were offered in Government, Business Administration, and Business Education. Courses in these areas had previously been taught in various other departments of the college.

September, 1962, brought a slight increase in the faculty and a tremendous increase in students. The department class enrollments increased to approximately 1,700, creating many space and teacher problems. During these two years the department was housed in Ogden Hall, a building still occupied by the Government and Sociology areas of the department.

On June 1, 1963, the Bowling Green College of Commerce was merged with Western Kentucky State College, which affected the Department of Business and Government almost exclusively since the degrees offered by the College of Commerce were all within the scope of the department. In addition to the merger, the former Department of Economics and Sociology was made a part of the Department of Business and Government with divisional responsibility as follows: Accounting and Finance, Mr. Glen Lange; Economics, Mr. Wayne Dobson; Government and Sociology, Dr. Hugh Thomason. The remaining areas of Marketing, Management, Secretarial Science and Business Education are still under the direct supervision of Dr. Jenkins.

The undergraduate curriculum in the department leads to Bachelor of Arts and the Bachelor of Science degree in the following areas of specialization:

ACCOUNTING: The Accounting curriculum is designed to train students entering either the public or private fields of accounting. The Bachelor of Science degree is awarded to successful majors which at the present time number slightly less than 200 students.

BUSINESS EDUCATION: The Business Education curriculum conforms with the state requirements of Kentucky and prepares the recipient of the Bachelor of Science degree to teach the various business subjects at the secondary school level. At present, majors in the area number about 100.

BUSINESS MANAGEMENT: The Business Management area offers either the Bachelor of Arts or the Bachelor of Science degree with an emphasis in the areas of Marketing, Management, or Finance. This is the largest area within the department, embracing some three to four hundred individuals.

ECONOMICS: The Bachelor of Arts degree only is available and under the present affiliation with the department, the degree remains under the previous title of Economics and Sociology. This area is primarily a service area for the rest of the college and has less than one hundred majors.

GOVERNMENT: The inclusion of Government as a part of the department recognizes the relationship of business and government in our society. The Bachelor of Arts degree is awarded and at present there are about one hundred majors.

In addition, a one-year certificate is offered in Secretarial Science and a two-year diploma is awarded in Secretarial Science and Small Business Management.

At present the department offers a Master of Arts in Business Education degree in cooperation with the Department of Education. This program is designed to further the training and competence of the business teacher in secondary schools.

Retained by the department in the merger are three honorary fraternities which were a part of the Bowling Green College of Commerce. Two of these, Pi Tau Nu and Alpha Sigma are honorary business fraternities and the other Beta Pi is an honorary accounting fraternity.

These fraternities have as their primary purpose the fostering of scholarship and maintain extremely rigid standards for qualification. All three are local fraternities. There are no other national fraternities within the department at present.

HISTORY OF BETA GAMMA KAPPA

Early in the spring of 1963, the beginning of Beta Gamma Kappa was fostered by David Walter by inquiring about the possibility of forming a professional business fraternity. After information regarding such an undertaking was obtained, a meeting was called on May 21 to determine the extent of interest in a business fraternity. At this initial meeting, forty-six students attended and expressed the desire to become a fraternity. Due to the nearness to the end of the semester it was decided to wait until the fall to formally organize the fraternity.

On October 17, 1963, an organizational meeting was held and Beta Gamma Kappa became a reality. During the next few weeks the by-laws were drawn up and the following officers were elected:

President	David Walter
Senior Vice-President	Gilbert Elberson
Vice-President	Ben Redden
Secretary	Richard Morton
Treasurer	Eddie Schrecker
Chancellor	Charles Schwarz
Historian	Larry Bowen
Advisors	Mr. Glen Lange Mr. J. Robert Foster

During the formation of the organization seventy-three students expressed an interest in the fraternity with fifty-one actually becoming members. From the beginning, even at the meeting in May 1963, the group was unanimous in their desire to affiliate with Delta Sigma Pi.

Since November we have had several distinguished speakers. Among these are Mr. Tatgenharst of Haskins and Sells, Louisville, Kentucky; Mr. Womack of Travelers Insurance, Louisville, Kentucky; Mr. Cardwell, Vice-President of American National Bank and Trust Company, Bowling Green, Kentucky. Our professional speaker program has advanced quite nicely and as the big event of the semester we are planning a field trip to the Rockwell Manufacturing Company plant located at Russellville, Kentucky.

On January 16, 1964, election of officers for the second semester was held. Elected to guide the fraternity in their further endeavors were:

President	David Walter
Senior Vice-President	Gilbert Elberson
Vice-President	Howard Asa
Secretary	John B. Matheney
Treasurer	Rodney L. Thompson
Chancellor	Richard Ten Barge
Historian	Garnett Hampton

With the second semester under way, Beta Gamma Kappa wrote to Delta Sigma Pi asking to petition so as to establish a chapter on this campus. This letter was followed by the visit of Mr. Charles Farrar who presented the story of Delta Sigma Pi and answered questions regarding the possibility of affiliation by Beta Gamma Kappa . After this meeting, the process of preparing a petition was started.

This is the story of Beta Gamma Kappa in capsule form. It shows that with leadership and brotherhood a group of college students were joined together and now form a strong union with the desire of becoming a chapter of Delta Sigma Pi.

GLEN LANGE

Associate Professor

Mr. Lange received his bachelor's degree in Accounting from Drake University, his master's degree in Economics from Hardin-Simmons University and is presently a candidate for the Doctor of Philosophy degree in Accounting from the University of Missouri.

Mr. Lange is in charge of the Accounting and Finance programs in the department. He is a member of Delta Sigma Pi, American Accounting Association, and is currently regional control chairman of the Accounting Careers Council for the state of Kentucky. He is also the author of a programmed study guide for beginning accounting students.

Gentlemen:

It is a pleasure to support the petition of Beta Gamma Kappa in requesting affiliation with Delta Sigma Pi.

As a member of Delta Sigma Pi and one of the faculty advisors of Beta Gamma Kappa, I am well aware of the implications of this proposed affiliation. The members of the fraternity have been counseled regarding their duties and responsibilities as members of Delta Sigma Pi and are pledged to carry out the traditions of the fraternity.

I have had most of the members in class and know almost all of them personally. In my opinion, they are a fine group of young men who would bring honor to the fraternity as members of Delta Sigma Pi. In addition, the affiliation with Delta Sigma Pi would make their college days more meaningful and aid in their preparation for business careers.

The initiative for the formation of Beta Gamma Kappa has come entirely from the members themselves; they have received no pressure from me. The group was also completely free from pressure in electing unanimously to seek affiliation with Delta Sigma Pi. I feel that under these healthy circumstances, the members of Beta Gamma Kappa possess the necessary spirit and willingness to work in order to insure success in their operation as a professional business fraternity.

Sincerely,

Glen Lange

Gentlemen:

The members of Beta Gamma Kappa, the local professional business fraternity at Western Kentucky State College, have informed me of their intention to become affiliated with Delta Sigma Pi. I have encouraged the idea of affiliation since I believe these young men would profit from an association with a national professional business fraternity.

It has been my pleasure to know personally a number of the young men who have been most actively involved in the organization and continuous operation of Beta Gamma Kappa. Without exception, these young men represent the highest caliber of business student at this institution. They are typically above-average students with a strong interest in the business world. They have demonstrated their ability to work with each other as a team by their successful efforts to initiate a local business fraternity. The leadership of Beta Gamma Kappa has been particularly noteworthy. These young men acting as elected officers of the fraternity have proven their ability to handle leadership responsibility. Furthermore, they have shown a willingness to cooperate with others, including the college, in order to get the task of organization accomplished.

I would recommend the members of Beta Gamma Kappa as candidates for affiliation with Delta Sigma Pi without qualification.
